

OUR KIDS AND MENTAL HEALTH DEVOTIONS COLLECTION

October 11, 2023

A lot of us are concerned about kids—our own children, our grandchildren, and the kids in our families and communities. The normal ups and downs for young people can be a lot for kids, parents, and those who help and work with kids. The COVID-19 pandemic era added new challenges on top of growing stresses about social media and other national and global news stories, conflicts, and disasters. Even before, a decade earlier, feelings of persistent sadness and hopelessness- as well as suicidal thoughts and behaviors- increased by about 40% among children and teens in the United States Youth Risk Behavior Surveillance System.

It's comforting to know God helps us in dealing with our anxiety and stress well. "The one who calls you is faithful and he will do it" (1 Thessalonians 5:24 NIV). We, too, can set some examples of positive physical, mental, and spiritual health to equip our kids.

Reading the Bible and doing devotions together can improve the spiritual health of your family. KC Devotions continues to focus on children's mental health and spiritual formation and presents devotions and parent blogs helping parents and children deal with big feelings like fear, grief, worry, lament, and loneliness. Some recent devotions started under the theme of "Psalms and the Big Feelings", and writers broadened their focus and found other scriptures, so the theme grew to become "The Bible and Big Feelings."

Check out this list of devotions and parent blogs. A special thanks to all the writers for their words and work. We were also blessed with a therapist reviewing all the pieces and adding some additional perspectives.
