Imagine reaching out to one of your friends only to find that something is very wrong. They are sad and hurt and don't want to talk. Then you learn that your friend just received the terrible news that their parents are going through a divorce. What do you say to them? How can you help them feel better when everything is falling apart?

In today's verse, Paul describes God as the God who comforts us so that we can comfort others. Jesus was the greatest comforter of all, and we can learn a lot from his example. He was great at seeing other's pain and showing them patience, love, and humility. In fact, he loves us so much that he died on the cross to save us from our sins. What an amazing act of love! So what does it look like for us to comfort others? How can we show love like Jesus to a friend who is hurting?

Just like Jesus, you can comfort a friend by listening to them, being honest and trustworthy, and staying by their side in good times and in bad. Comforting someone is an act of love. Helping a friend that is hurting does not mean you have to know all the “right” things to say. Sometimes a simple “I am here for you” is enough. A friend in pain needs your presence more than your words. And even though they are hurting, you can keep doing normal, fun things that friends do to help cheer them up. Like Jesus, you can be a ray of hope in their time of need.

Prayer

Lord, please open my eyes to see when friends are hurting. Help me to be a comfort to them so that through me they can know the greatness of your love and mercy. Amen.
